TMS Course Summary Information

OPENING SESSION: Tuesday, September 30, 2014 1:00pm – 5:00pm

Motivating Learners: (Kendall Zoller, Ed. D)

Imagine seeing what you have always looked at and looking at it in ways you have never seen it before. This workshop is about presenting with purpose to motivate and instruct. As training managers and instructors we explore presentation skills that motivate learners and accelerate learning by establishing credibility, rapport, and building positive group dynamics.

WORKSHOPS: Wednesday, October 1, 2014 8:00am – 5:00pm

Effective Communication Skills: (Gloria Cohn)

This workshop is interactive training in which people attending will learn how to enhance and elevate their speaking style. This course will help participants with presentations at staff meetings, to boards, commissions or the public. Participants will be introduced to a landmark research study that highlights the importance of delivery skills. Instruction combines lecture, demonstration and video examples as trainees are introduced to the eight building blocks to effective presentations. Participants will learn how to incorporate the one communication skill that will best suit their individual style.

Establishing a Learning Culture (Geri Lopker)

A learning culture is committed to ongoing learning that is tied directly to the organization's mission, supports organizational goals and is championed at all levels of the organization. This workshop will cover what is a learning culture, why is a learning culture needed, roadblocks to the establishment and success of a learning culture, keys to learning culture success, and developing an action plan.

Role of the Training Manager (Barbara Fenton and Sara Dunham)

This workshop is designed to provide the STC Training Manager with the tools to enhance the agency training program. Instruction will cover the role of the training manager and how to incorporate needs assessments into your training plan. Training managers will explore mechanisms to enhance their department's training mission.

Connecting Your Classroom (Cheryl Webb and Jim Gordon)

During this workshop, participants will see some powerful internet based tools you can use to integrate with your presentations. This training will provide some practical and creative methods to energize training at no cost. Instruction will be provided on online document sharing, conversation blogs, assessment tools, Prezi and web based interactivity that can easily be integrated with a simple PowerPoint presentation and supercharge classroom activities. Participants are encouraged to bring a cell phone, notebook or laptop with internet access.

WORKSHOPS: Thursday, October 2, 2014 – 8:00am – 5:00pm

Needs Assessment (Geri Lopker)

This workshop will cover needs assessment: who, what, when, where, and why; four practical steps to conducting a needs assessment; and now what: taking action based on the results of the needs assessment.

Avoiding Civil Liability (Christopher W. Miller, Esq.)

This workshop covers the relationship between the failure to train and civil liability by focusing on training requirements and documentation in subject areas where liability issues are most common. The course will address best practices for training managers to avoid civil liability, including agency procedures, training plans, documentation, and managing policy updates.

Designing Effective Learning Activities (Michelle Weiler)

The purpose of this workshop is to create a paradigm shift that will cause participants to transition from a teacher centered classroom environment to a learner-centered classroom environment where students are challenged to discover concepts, skills, or knowledge through an interactive learning process. This hands-on workshop is designed to cause participants to discover not only what defines a learning activity, but also the elements necessary for a learning activity to be successful. Participants will ultimately discover through their own direct involvement how much deeper their learning becomes when students are actively engaged.

Human Factors: Threat & Error Management (Craig Geis)

This workshop is designed to emphasize a pro-active response to error discovery and/or threat of human error within an organization. Topics of discussion include situational awareness, stress and performance, decision making, effective communications in critical situations, and leadership skills. Designed for both management and line employees, this training is useful in developing an understanding of the nature of human behavior with respect to error.

CLOSING SESSION: Friday, October 3, 2014 8:00pm – 12:00pm

Winning the Battle (Clark A. Paris and Tracie Paris)

This workshop addresses how to recognize the signs of PTSD/Cumulative Stress and Depression, not only within oneself but in peers, supervisors and subordinates. Participants will be introduced to several resources and different types of psychological help available as well as why those resources are utilized and how they are effective. This training addresses issues that have a direct impact on the corrections field.
