Applicants should select projects and activities that best fit the needs identified by the community and local stakeholders for the target population.

Applicants may either implement new projects or expand existing projects.

BSCC staff may require additional information and/or must provide prior approval for certain activities and expenditures EVEN if written into the proposal.
Applicants:

❖ Are required to demonstrate that the proposed services are directly linked to the implementation of evidence-based practices/strategies (EBPs) or promising practices

❖ Must identify the evidence that shows the practice is effective and appropriate for the target population

❖ Should be able to describe the documentation, data, evidence, etc. to support their approach and why it is best suited to their population’s needs, and the goals and objectives described in the application for funding.
On a basic level, EBPs include the following elements:

✓ Evidence that the intervention is likely to work, i.e., produce a desired benefit;

✓ Evidence that the intervention is being carried out as intended; and

✓ Evidence that allows an evaluation of whether the intervention worked.
EBPs involves using research-based interventions that produce reductions in recidivism through the use of the following four principles of effective intervention:

Risk Principle – focuses on attention on the crucial question of WHO is being served and calls for targeting the higher risk offenders.

Need Principle – requires that priority be given to addressing criminogenic risk/need factors with a clear focus on WHAT programs are delivered.
Responsivity Principle – conveys the importance of using behavioral treatment approaches to achieve the best possible outcomes and requires attention to the questions of HOW programs are delivered

Fidelity Principle – draws attention to HOW WELL programs are delivered and reiterates the necessity that programs be implemented as designed
