Community Corrections Partnership (CCP) Plan Implementation

Describe an accomplishment or highlight (as defined by the CCP) achieved in FY 2011-12 and or 2012-13.

In October 2012 the Madera Probation Department entered into agreement with the Madera Rescue Mission for inpatient treatment services regarding offenders with substance abuse problems. The scope of services provided by the Rescue Mission included a twelve-step recovery treatment program, adult general education studies, and individual/group/family counseling. Additionally, the program provides housing, meals, and transition into the community upon completion for the participants. The Rescue Mission is the first residential treatment facility with which Madera Probation has contracted locally. As a result, a better service is delivered between both agencies as the two are close in proximity and Probation can supervise the offenders more efficiently while in the program. Prior to the agreement Madera Probation would place these type of offenders out of county in other treatment facilities. Since the collaboration, sixteen offenders were referred, five have completed, and eight are still in the program. The program is deemed successful as it defers low level offenders from local jail sentences into a treatment facility. Overall, the program fits the needs of both the offender and the community by providing rehabilitation and a cost saving for the taxpayers.

In August 2013 the offender returned from treatment and reported he wanted to continue attending outpatient services at Westcare to help in maintaining his sobriety. AB 109 funding was granted for the offender to continue to receive outpatient services.

Describe a local success story (as defined by the CCP).

An offender was released to Post-Release Community Supervision (PRCS) in 2012. He was eager to start substance abuse counseling as he had an addiction to methamphetamine. He was referred to Madera County Behavioral Health for Substance Abuse Counseling with AB 109 funding. The offender was certified in welding, however he wanted to further his education for future employment so he received an AB 109-funded scholarship to Madera Community College's (MMC) Maintenance Mechanic/Welding Program. The offender was struggling in class and on his own volition started attending tutoring sessions at MCC and graduated in May 2013. During that same time his father was admitted to the VA Hospital and was diagnosed as only having a few months to live. The offender relapsed and was placed on weekly drug testing and continued to attend his Substance Abuse counseling. In June 2013 the offender's father passed away and he asked for help in locating an inpatient program as he felt his addiction was taking over his life. In July 2013 the offender was placed at Westcare with the assistance of AB 109 funding and completed the 30-day inpatient program. In August 2013 the offender returned from treatment and reported he wanted to continue attending outpatient services at Westcare to help in maintaining his sobriety. AB 109 funding was granted for the offender to continue to receive outpatient services. The offender also reported he was going to enroll in the advanced Welding class at MCC. Because of his skills and fortitude, he was offered employment at MCC as a student instructor in the Welding Program. The offender attended classes and worked at MCC on a daily basis and also continued attending outpatient services through Westcare two times a week at the time of his discharge from PRCS on September 19, 2013.
